

Alan Dixon, renowned for his vibrant house music, brings together global sounds to create tracks bursting with life. Marked out as one to watch by industry taste-makers including Mixmag, Defected and Traxsource, his name has been growing over the past few years with support from DJs and promoters worldwide.

Alan's musical evolution has seen his early works of gospel-tinged house and cosmic disco mature into dynamic, big-room anthems supported by Keinemusik, Black Coffee, Gerd Janson, Bedouin and many more.

In 2020 Alan launched his own label, Love Attack, which has seen contributions from artist such as Prins Thomas, Moscoman, Alinka and Amr Diab to name a few.

His work with Keinemusik over the past few years is what has really catapulted him to global recognition. "Forms of Love" and "Thandaza" were both Beatport numbers ones and received Pete Tong's 'Essential New Tune' on his BBC Radio 1 show.

Internationally, Alan has left his mark, from electrifying Tomorrowland to spinning at Finsbury Park with Keinemusik. He's played at iconic venues and festivals such as Circoloco, Hi Ibiza, Watergate, Monegros and extended his influence through tours in Australia, Mexico, and across Europe. His ability to merge sounds while experimenting with influences and supporting subcultural scenes underlines his ongoing evolution as an artist.
